Salary: We were offered 1% as of July 1, 2017, plus an additional 1% in merit if the state reaches its revenue target of $27 billion.

The FSU is working with a coalition of unions across the UMass campuses for higher salary increases, no take-backs; an additional .5% in addition in lieu of steps; and any merit in addition to a real cost of living increase.

Junior faculty sabbatical/research intensive semester

The FSU is still working on this.

Union work

The Administration proposes:

A reduction in the number of course load reductions (CLRs) for union work
Removal of current language that allows banking CLRs for this work

Parking Bargaining

The Administration is proposing:

$15/day on campus (new garage, campus center, Lot D)
$9 at Bayside

We have met with the administration only once. No counter proposals were given by the FSU. We only met to ask clarifying questions on their proposal and any documents they provided that were affiliated with their proposal.

Here are some answers from the administration on parking:

They do not know about handicapped parking fees on campus and will get back to us on that.
They do not want to have 60, 45, and 20 park passes.
They will buy back any unused passes such as the above.
You will pay for electricity should you charge your electric car in the garage (and they do not plan for you to get a discount on parking).
They are open to many suggestions, AS LONG AS THEY REACH THEIR REVENUE TARGETS
They are saying that parking is a zero sum: if they don’t get their revenue target, something else in our contract must change (lower salary increases, etc.). They are saying their budget for 2018-19 is based on parking revenue from their proposal.

Article 20 Librarians--We have reached a final agreement on Article 20
• An exception clause was added to the minimum years of service
• A procedure was added for librarians assigned to new supervisory roles
• The Annual Report and Evaluation for Librarians, will now be called the Annual Librarian Report and Evaluation of Professional Activities to align with the faculty. The report also adds language to clarify professorial activities.

Distance Learning

• The administration has decided that departments and not CAPS will administer DL courses.
• For all faculty, DL courses will now contractually be treated in exactly the same way as in-person courses. For NTT faculty, this means that DL courses will now officially be subject to the course assignment regulations in Article 21, as is (mostly) the current practice.
• Given that CAPS will no longer administer DL courses, we were able to reach agreement that several current practices will be written into the contract for the first time to ensure that they continue:
  • a) right of first refusal for DL course developers,
  • b) receiving a $3000 course creation stipend,
  • c) the royalty fee of $500 when someone else teaches the course.
• The administration insisted that it wants departments to be able to develop what it terms “shell courses.” These courses will be the property of the department and the department will assign the instructors. Intellectual property rights for such courses will remain with the departments and not with the individual faculty member. We were able to reach an agreement that allows for the creation of shell courses but still provides protections for faculty, especially the right not to be forced to create a shell course.
• A new provision will allow departments the option to contract with faculty members, e.g. by offering a stipend or course release, to develop a DL “shell” course intended to be taught with varying instructors and content. The FSU would be required to be party to all such agreements so that faculty can ensure agreement on these in their departments.
• The Administration sought to end the practice of paying an overage fee ($100) for every student above the course limit for distance learning courses. Since this was a CAPS and not a contractual policy, and since relatively few instructors were actually affected by this policy, we agreed in exchange for language enhancements in Article 15 (Faculty Workload).

Faculty Workload/Article 15

• We will be significant improvements and clarifications written into the new contract that affect all faculty.
  • (a) individual faculty members have the final decision about adding additional students to their courses once the course enrollment limit is reached
  • (b) departments have primary responsibility for setting course caps.
• Current contract language specifies that the average workload in a department can’t be changed during the life of the contract. We will keep the existing language. This means that:
• The administration and deans cannot force an instructor to accept students above the course cap.
• The administration and deans cannot on their own raise course caps. Departments set the caps.

Continuing Education
• Fall/Spring CAPS courses (offered off-site or between 3 p.m. Friday and Sunday regardless of location) will now be labeled “Continuing Education” courses. They will continue to be paid at the individual faculty member’s rate.
• Summer/Winter session courses will also now be classified as “Continuing Education” courses and will be subject to a clarified seniority assignment system based on total number of summer/winter courses taught. Those with seniority standing will continue to be guaranteed up to two courses in the summer and up to one in the winter, subject to department course availability.
• Summer/Winter continuing education courses will be paid to tenure track faculty and NTTs with the rank of Lecturer or above at the rate of $5,100 (the previous rate was $4,800 for TT and post-probationary lecturers).
• Associate Lecturers will be paid $4,500 per Summer/Winter continuing education course (increased from the previous rate of $4,400 for probationary lecturers); and any Associate Lecturer who is currently paid more than that amount, such as those converted from Lecturer in the previous contract, will not have their Summer/Winter rate lowered.

Clinical Nursing Faculty

• Clinical Nursing faculty negotiations were left unfinished in the previous contract and we were determined to settle Clinical issues in this contract. After quite a bit of heavy and intense bargaining, lots of creative thinking, and a few creative compromises we are very close to resolving Clinical issues. That resolution will enable us to finish Article 21 bargaining. We will update members as soon as we reach tentative agreement.

• Here are the issues:

• The major point of contention in Clinical negotiations has been workload.
• The Administration has recognized that the current workload structure for clinical faculty cannot be sustained and has shown willingness to address our concerns.
• We are exchanging proposals on workload and expect to meet finalize an agreement on this issue.

2/12/18
The FSU bargaining team has met with the administration a few times since our last update; this is what has occurred:

We have agreed to major changes in the contract language concerning CAPS/Distance Learning/Continuing Education.

► Distance Learning- (DL) For all faculty, DL courses will now contractually be treated in exactly the same way as in-person courses. For NTT faculty, this means that DL courses will now officially be subject to the course assignment regulations in Article 21,¹ as is (mostly) the current practice. Several current practices will be written into the contract for the first time to ensure that these continue: a) right of first refusal for DL course developers, b) receiving a $3000 course creation stipend, and c) the royalty fee of $500 when someone else teaches the course. A new provision will allow departments the option to contract with faculty members, e.g. by offering a stipend or course release, to develop a DL “shell” course intended to be taught with varying instructors and content. Intellectual property rights for such courses will remain with the departments and not with the individual faculty member. The FSU would be required to be party to all such agreements so that faculty can ensure agreement on these in their departments. In addition, the Administration sought to end the practice of paying an overage fee ($100) for every student above the course limit for distance learning courses.² We have agreed to that in exchange for language enhancements in Article 15 (Faculty Workload; see below).

► Faculty Workload- We agreed to contract language that specifies that (a) individual faculty members have the final decision about adding additional students to a their courses once the course enrollment limit was reached, and (b) departments have primary responsibility in setting course caps. Current contract language specifies that the average workload in a department can’t be changed during the life of the contract. The Administration had proposed eliminating this provision but have since agreed to rescind this proposal.

► Continuing Education- Fall/Spring CAPS courses (offered off-site or between 3 p.m. Friday and Sunday regardless of location) will now be labeled “Continuing Education” courses. They will continue to be paid at the individual faculty member’s rate. Summer/Winter session courses will also now be classified as “Continuing Education” courses and will be subject to a clarified seniority assignment system based on total number of summer/winter courses taught. Those with seniority standing will continue to be guaranteed up to two courses in the summer and up to one in the winter, subject to department course availability. Summer/Winter continuing education courses will be paid to tenure track faculty and NTTs with the rank of Lecturer or above at the rate of $5,100 (the previous rate was $4,800 for TT and post-probationary lecturers). Associate Lecturers will be paid $4,500 per Summer/Winter continuing education course (increased from the previous rate of $4,400 for probationary lecturers); and any Associate Lecturer who is currently paid more than that amount, such as those converted from Lecturer in the previous contract, will not have their Summer/Winter rate lowered. All CAPS contract language is now in Article 36.

By enshrining these distance learning and continuing education policies in the contract, we have ensured that they cannot be changed except at the bargaining table. This will put us in a much stronger position to protect these rights should there be any structural changes to CAPs or distance learning, inclusive of those that may occur via UMass Online

► Librarians – We have reached final agreement on all language for librarians, including an agreement on changes to the Annual Report and Evaluation for Librarians, which will now be called the Annual Librarian Report and Evaluation of Professional Activities to align with faculty and Amherst librarians. The report also adds language to clarify professional activities; procedures for negotiating over a stipend

² We agreed to this for a number of reasons. First, we didn’t believe we were on a sound contractual basis to contest this if the Administration decided to unilaterally implement the change, because taking in many more students than the course cap undermines the argument that the course cap is too high. We also believed that language enhancements we received above were worthy of the trade. Finally, we were hard pressed to justify maintaining this policy while we simultaneously argue that any increase in individual faculty members’ class sizes must be met with a decrease in workload elsewhere. In short, we did not believe we were on solid ground in advocating for limits on class size increases while simultaneously having a policy that incentivizes such increases. Instead, we wanted to dis-incentivize over-enrollments and incentivize creating additional sections. for internal appointments to department head, and exceptions added to minimum years in service for promotions (see here for the tentative agreement).

►Clinical Nursing Faculty – We have made progress on a major point of contention between the parties—workload. The Administration has recognized that the current workload structure for clinical faculty cannot be sustained and has shown willingness to address our concerns. We have asked them to provide a written counter-proposal and expect that this proposal will include some combination of a 4/3 or 3/4 Fall/Spring teaching load, and two clinical nursing tracks (one for those who perform teaching, scholarship, clinical practice, and service; one for those who do only teaching and some limited service).

The FSU bargaining team has met with the administration several times since our last update; this is what has occurred:

►Salary Increases – We received the following verbal offer for salary increases:

- 1% in January 2018, with an extra 1% in August 2018 if the state meets revenue targets of $27 billion.
- 2% in January 2019
- 2% in January 2020

We are working with a coalition of unions, including UMass Amherst, Dartmouth, Lowell, and state employees with SEIU and NAGE (National Association of Government Workers) to increase this offer.

►Parking- The Administration wants to negotiate parking fee increases. We have yet to receive their offer.

►Research Intensive Semester for Junior Faculty- We reiterated to the Administration the importance to our junior faculty of this issue. We are awaiting a response.
► Tuition Waiver Benefit - We submitted a more generous proposal along with other UMass university unions. The Administration will review and respond.

► Non-Tenure Track Faculty – We have exchanged proposals on a few details clarifying the nature of the service NTT will be performing (see previous update for details on the NTT service agreement we reached). We expect to reach agreement on the totality of Article 21 (NTT) shortly.

► Clinical Nursing Faculty – We have met a few times since the last update and exchanged proposals clarifying the promotional process, workload, and job description. We are close to agreement on most issues but remain stuck on the question of workload (the FSU is proposing a 3/3 workload plus service and/or scholarship, which reflects the current job requirements; the Administration is proposing 4/4 inclusive of service with scholarship optional). We are hoping this fundamental disagreement on workload can be addressed but will update you on steps that we- and you- can take to create movement on this.

► Distance Learning- The Administration has proposed language that would modify the distance learning agreement (Article 35) in a few significant ways: 1) it would eliminate reference to CAPS which would allow distance learning courses to be offered directly by departments, 2) it has proposed language that allows departments to pay an individual or individuals to develop certain courses without having to grant them intellectual property rights (these would be ‘basic’ courses that would be designed for any members of the department to use). The FSU is planning to counter with language that: A) would require distance learning courses to follow the overall NTT seniority provision in Article 21.3 (i.e. any distance learning course would be treated as a ‘regular’ course in regards to additional work), B) that all current CAPS policies regarding distance learning be written into the contract (i.e. right of first refusal for developers of distance learning courses, royalty fee policies, etc.), and C) asked the Administration to be more specific on what types of courses would not require granting of intellectual property rights to individuals and the formal mechanism by which that would be determined.

► CAPS/Continuing Education- The Administration proposed that Fall/Spring courses currently offered off-site or after 3PM on Friday regardless of location would become continuing education courses that would be paid at a set rate ($4,900 to TT and NTT with continuing appointments, $4,400 for any NTT without continuing appointments), i.e., not at the individuals rate of salary unless the course in question was part of an NTT’s continuing appointment. They are also proposing these rates for Summer/Winter teaching. And they have proposed eliminating the priority list for Summer/Winter courses, giving full discretion to chairs to assign courses as they see fit. We will be offering a response that includes retaining a Summer/Winter priority assignment system and that proposes somewhat higher Summer/Winter rates.

► Librarians – We reached an agreement on changes to the Annual Report and Evaluation for Librarians, which will now be called the Annual Librarian Report and Evaluation of Professional Activities to align with faculty and Amherst librarians. The report also adds language to clarify professorial activities. We are still negotiating over a stipend for internal appointments to department head and changes to minimum years in service for promotions. We expect to reach agreement with the administration soon.

► Sexual Harassment Policy- The Administration is proposing to modify the current policy to require faculty to be mandatory reporters of sexual assaults per Title IX. They are also proposing modifications to the due process requirements of the sexual harassment procedures. We are establishing a team to work on this and respond.
We have reached a (tentative) agreement with the Administration on Non-Tenure Track (NTT) service (and scholarship) and a procedure for Senior Lecturer IIs to receive a reduced teaching load for service or scholarship.

For many years, we have been trying to reduce the teaching load for NTTs. The administration has agreed that full-time Senior Lecturer II’s may apply for two-year positions where they would receive a 3/4 or 4/3 teaching load, while remaining at 100% time, if these NTTs perform more substantial service (and/or scholarship). Someone on such an appointment will be evaluated for service (and/or scholarship). These appointments will be at the discretion of the Dean (and of course, must be agreeable to the faculty member).

Although we tried to get much more than this, and while the Administration acknowledged the desirability of such appointments, in part to help ease the heavy service load on tenure stream faculty, given the difficult budget situation, we were not able to get more than this procedure for reducing the teaching load for some NTTs. But it is a victory that this will now be in the contract and that there is now a procedure for reducing the teaching load for Senior Lecturer IIs.

To get this, we agreed to resolve the issue of service requirements for NTTs. To understand this resolution, we need to consider both the history and current status of NTT service. When NTTs were first able to achieve benefitted status in 1998, part of the agreement was that benefitted NTTs might be assigned a small amount of service, in order to justify their slightly higher salary rate, if this service was stipulated in their individual contracts. However, most NTT faculty were never issued individual contracts, particularly in CLA, so they were technically not required to perform any service; moreover, this language stipulating that service could be required if in their individual contracts was removed in the last collective agreement.

As a result, some chairs and departments have maintained that NTT service is required, and have assigned it, while others understand it to be voluntary. At present there are a number of NTTs performing more substantial service, including serving on departmental committees, with some believing it to be voluntary and others thinking that it is mandatory. And other NTTs are currently performing little or no service—depending on precisely how service is defined.
Last year, the Administration began asserting in Senior Lecturer reviews that NTT service is mandatory, despite the lack of language in the bargaining agreement to justify this. The FSU filed a grievance and reached a settlement agreement with the Administration that NTT service would be treated on a “help not hurt” basis in reviews in the present year (see here for more information). The settlement agreement also required the parties (FSU and the Administration) to address the issue of service requirements for non-tenure track faculty during this current round of bargaining.

And, to complicate matters all the more, because of the ongoing budget woes, throughout bargaining the Administration has generally sought to avoid commitments to any increases in spending.

In seeking to devise policies that would satisfy our NTT members, both those with an established pattern of performing service and those without one, we developed the following principles:

Since some NTTs faculty enjoy performing service and want to continue to do so, we wanted these faculty to continue to be able to do so. We also believe that it is generally beneficial for NTTs to perform at least some service, since this produces a more meaningful relationship with their department. Complete lack of service is alienating—it corresponds to the role of a purely adjunct teacher.

However, we also sought to avoid imposing a requirement of sizeable new duties on those who already have heavy work-loads.

We also sought to insure that any substantial service would involve some formal recognition and reward, which is for the most part not true at present. (NTT scholarship is also currently not formally recognized or rewarded).

And finally, we believe that it is beneficial for NTTs collectively if at least some NTTs are able to participate in committee work in their departments, and also at the college and university levels. This will allow NTTs to have influence in faculty governance matters, such as departmental curriculum.

Despite the complexity and difficulty of the situation, we have been able to reach the following agreements, which satisfy these principles:

First, partly by way of concession to the Administration, Lecturers, Senior Lecturers, and Senior Lecturer II’s who are half-time or greater will be required to do limited, “basic” service such as some student advising or attending departmental meetings, or representing the department at Welcome Days or similar events. NTTs will consult with their chairs to determine what their service will be. (Note that this is disjunctive—these are options and the faculty would only do one, not more than of these). The agreement also specifies that the “workload shall be such that he or she can reasonably be expected to discharge the assigned responsibilities within the percentage of time specified in the individual’s contract”—so there is not an increased workload. And there are protections connecting service with the modality of instruction, so those who teach on-line might be asked to Skype in to meetings rather than being required to come to campus.

This satisfies our principles in that it is not a substantial additional burden—this is a very limited set of duties, with options, and no increased workload. Most of the relevant faculty already satisfy this requirement. This also helps achieve lack of alienation—these are meaningful roles, and, for those who attend departmental meetings, this allows for some participation in departmental governance.

We also got agreement that any more substantial service, e.g., advising a larger number of students or performing committee work, is voluntary. Such additional voluntary service will qualify for B pool merit, thus potentially resulting in salary increases. (B pool merit is not based on competition among department members but is rather awarded by the Dean, with recommendations made by the department). NTT scholarship will similarly qualify for B pool merit awards.

Such voluntary additional service will be counted positively in Senior Lecturer and Senior Lecturer II promotional reviews, but lack of it will not count against the candidate, thus “help not hurt” for additional service beyond the basic.

This satisfies our principles since this additional service is voluntary rather than imposed and it also qualifies for several types of rewards.

The agreement that Full-time Senior Lecturer II’s may apply for 2 year positions where they would receive a 3/4 or 4/3 teaching load for more substantial service (and/or scholarship) duties at the discretion of the Dean satisfies our principles since the service (or scholarship) in question is directly compensated, with a corresponding work-load reduction. And NTT on these kind of appointments should be able to serve on committees that involve governance.

In summary, the new agreements are:

No service is required for Associate Lecturers and those less than 50% time.

“Basic” service is required for all other NTTs, typically attending departmental meetings, attending welcome day, or doing some advising (see above).

Additional service beyond this basic level is purely voluntary. Those who choose to perform it qualify for consideration for B pool merit for this work, and similarly for NTT scholarship. And voluntary additional service will also be considered on a “help not hurt” basis for promotions.

All full-time Senior Lecturer II’s are eligible to apply for a 2-year appointment at a slightly reduced teaching load of 3/4 (or 4/3), where duties include performance of service (and/or scholarship).

Since our last update, we have met with the Administration three times, twice to discuss Clinical Nursing faculty proposals and once to discuss Librarian proposals. Needless to say, no agreement on either proposal has yet been reached though we remain engaged on both issues.

With the end of the semester passing without a tentative agreement on the successor contract, the FSU team continues to bargain with the administration. However, we have agreed that we will do limited bargaining during the summer over only a few items currently on the table: NTT, CAPS, Librarians, and Clinical Nursing faculty. In addition, we have yet to hear from the Administration regarding their proposals for salary increases. We anticipate that bargaining over all other matters will continue into fall 17 and will keep you apprised of any progress during the summer months.

As the semester comes to an end the FSU bargaining team continues bargaining with the administration. Below is a status update on the numerous issues we are currently discussing at the table:

Salary Increases - The state still has not released budget details which guide all economic proposals from the University system. As we previously reported, the FSU, in coalition with all other higher education bargaining units, proposed 3% across the board salary increases, 1% merit, and a one-time $1000 payment on salary base to make up for the recent changes in our health insurance plans. We are also working closely with the coalition of state worker unions that represent state employees in all bargaining units organized in Massachusetts to assure the economic parameters are set at the highest level possible.

Tenure Track Faculty - We continue to raise the issue of the need for a Research Intensive Semester (RIS) for pre-tenure faculty and are negotiating a Phased Retirement option. To date the administration has refused to entertain the RIS. We do have movement on our Phased Retirement proposal and are optimistic we can secure an agreement on this benefit. The team met with faculty concerned about the need for a RIS, and we continue to work with this group. Let us know if you want to be part of this effort.

Non-Tenure Track Faculty - The team continues to pursue an agreement that acknowledges the service and scholarship efforts of NTT faculty.
Working conditions - We held a bargaining support meeting to discuss working conditions and the status of our working conditions proposal. Let us know if you want to be part of this effort.

Distance Education – Recently, the parties had our first discussion regarding distance education. We expect to have agreement on an expanded version of course creation policies and options.

Clinical Nursing Faculty – The FSU presented a comprehensive proposal on behalf of these faculty. Our proposal covers promotional criteria/process and workload specific to clinical nursing faculty.

Academic Freedom – We counter-proposed no changes in the current contract language.

Faculty absences - We declined adding language in the contract that requires faculty to obtain approval from their chairs for planned absences and their plan for alternative compensatory work for these absences.

Librarians - We submitted our proposal to the administration and are waiting for their response. We expect to be negotiating this with the administration soon.

As the Spring semester draws to an end, the FSU is working closely with the UMass Bargaining Unit Coalition to strategize our collective efforts over the summer months to assure a strong bargaining position when we finally receive economic parameters. Through this group we are coordinating our efforts to enhance the current tuition waiver/fee policy.

3/24/17

Dear Colleagues,

Here is the latest on bargaining:

- Salary: The FSU proposed a 3% salary increase each year of the contract plus $1000 flat increase to offset health insurance cost increases, plus an additional 1% merit pool.
- NTT Service and Scholarship: We had proposed that full-time appointments for certain NTTs (possibly Senior Lecturers and/or Senior Lecturer II’s) would include a 3/3 teaching load plus 25% scholarship and/or service. For other NTT faculty who are benefitted, we had proposed that while service should be treated as optional, it should be voluntary and ‘help not hurt’ in merit and promotion considerations. The Administration rejected these proposals.
- The FSU proposed the following package to the Administration to settle some outstanding issues: In exchange for us allowing the administration to keep unspent Research and Educational Support (RES) and FSU travel funds this academic year towards reducing the budget deficit, the administration would—--Agree to our NTT service and scholarship proposals (see above)
  --Agree to implement a junior faculty research intensive semester or difference in pay sabbatical (see previous update on these; either would allow for a junior faculty sabbatical)
Agree to keep the FSU course releases for union work (they want to eliminate one)

The Administration rejected this proposal and said they can take needed funds for the deficit from departments.

- Annual Evaluation of Faculty: The Administration has proposed to require that all faculty must complete an Annual Faculty Report (AFR) (currently you must do so to receive merit pay). They also proposed language that would increase the length of time student and teaching evaluations can be kept on file by departments (currently, departments may keep these for 6 years).

3/6/17

We've met with the Administration many times since the last update:

- Salaries: We will be bargaining these soon.
- Research Intensive Semester for junior faculty: We proposed a junior faculty sabbatical (research intensive semester) for pre-tenure track faculty. The Administration opposed this for budgetary reasons.
- Difference in pay leave: We proposed a leave that would allow an additional form of sabbatical (faculty would choose between this or the existing sabbatical and leaves) for tenure track faculty that could be a teaching free or reduced teaching (faculty’s choice) semester every three years. Faculty would be paid the difference between their current salary and the lowest Associate Lecturer salary. This would allow for junior faculty to take a reduced teaching load at no or low cost. The Administration opposed this proposal (saying we already have a great sabbatical policy and that the leave for junior faculty would cost money) and refused to offer a counter proposal (even one that in their view was cost neutral).
• Late career options: We proposed phased and partial retirement options for our members, based on a 2010 labor-management committee recommendation. The Administration is interested in the phased retirement option (reducing your time with a corresponding reduction in salary before retirement) similar to what UMass Amherst has, which we continue to negotiate.

• Academic Freedom: The Administration wants to add language in Article 8.3 and 8.4 here. In turn, the FSU would add the language in red in 8.2. We said that faculty are fearful that this language is too vague and may be used more broadly against us. They are re-working the language. Your input on these changes is important.

• Approval of chair for absences: The Administration wants faculty to obtain preapproval from their chairs for planned absences and compensatory meetings/assignments during the semester, which must be noted on their syllabi. We told the Administration that we do not want this in the contract. Let us know your thoughts.

• Changes in workload, tenure standards: The Administration has proposed to eliminate language that states
  * that tenure and promotion standards must remain the same during the three-year bargaining contract (but these standards can be re-negotiated during bargained).
  * that average faculty workload practices of departments/programs in the recent past cannot change during the three-year bargaining contract (but these can be re-negotiated during bargaining).
  * We have objected to making these changes in the contract.

• NTT Service and Scholarship: We proposed full-time appointments for certain NTTs (possibly Senior Lecturers and/or Senior Lecturer II’s) that would include a 3/3 teaching load plus 25% scholarship and/or service. For other NTT faculty who are benefitted, we have proposed that while service should be treated as optional, it should be encouraged and rewarded with several incentives. We are waiting for a response from the Administration.

• Emeritus Status for Senior Lecturers: We proposed that Senior Lecturers be able to have the title and privileges of Emeritus status. The Administration says that this title is a Board of Trustee title only for retired full professors, and that all faculty maintain their email accounts and library privileges upon retirement.

• Longevity Pay: The FSU proposed to increase this payment, based on years of service and paid upon retirement. The Administration rejected this proposal citing the budget crisis.

• Professor 2: We proposed an additional rank of Professor 2 after promotion to Professor. The Administration is interested in pursuing this in another bargaining round (when there is not a budget crisis).

• Working conditions: We proposed that bargaining unit members have access to an office with a desk and chairs, space to provide confidentiality when meeting with students, and a university provided computer and access to a printer, as well as adequate resources to perform our teaching, research, and scholarship. The Administration rejected this proposal.

• Class Size: We proposed that any increase in class sizes or class size minimums must have a corresponding decrease in work in other areas of unit member responsibility such that the overall workload does not increase. The Administration rejected this proposal.

• Class Schedule Times: We proposed to eliminate MWF class times and have classes be scheduled for once or twice a week only. The Administration says that departments can already do this by talking to their colleges, and they do not want to mandate this in the contract.
• Union work: The Administration wants to reduce the number of course load reductions (CLRs) for union work and to disallow banking CLRs for this work. This will hurt our ability to provide services to you.

• AFRS: The Administration wants to require faculty to complete these.

• Waivers for student letters on promotions: The Administration does not want students’ names to appear on the table of contents in promotion materials (currently, faculty have the right to see the names of all letter writers, including students, even if they waived their right to read the letters).

• Librarians: We proposed clarifying the process for flexible work options and a flexible work week, addressing compensation issues related to increased workload, creating a process for title and compensation changes when the nature of an individual librarian’s workload changes significantly, counting family leave as accrued time for promotional purposes, and formalizing the content of the librarian annual review. The Administration has not yet responded.

• CAPS: See the prior update on this.

• Distance Learning: We have not bargained this yet.

• Clinical Nursing Faculty: We gave the Administration our proposals that clarify workload and appointment, reappointment, and promotional criteria and procedures.

Sincerely,
Marlene Kim

1/13/17

Dear Colleague,

The FSU and Administration have formally begun bargaining for a successor agreement to the 2014-17 contract (final language for the 14-17 contract has finally been completed; you can see the contract at the FSU website). We have also concluded settlement talks on the previous Article 21 contract conversion issues. (an update can be seen here; see here for final Article 21 language as well as the memorandum of understanding concerning the Article 21 settlement).

The members of the FSU bargaining team are:

Caroline Coscia, Senior Lecturer, Political Science
John Hess, Senior Lecturer II, English/American Studies
Larry Kaye, Senior Lecturer II, Philosophy
Marlene Kim, Professor, Economics
Askold Melnyczuk, Associate Professor, English
Tina Mullins, Librarian III
We have met with the Administration a few times and have given them proposals on the following:

1. Class Size- We are proposing that any increase in class sizes or class size minimums must have a corresponding decrease in work in other areas of unit member responsibility such that the overall workload does not increase.
2. CAPS- We are proposing to increase Summer/Winter compensation rates to keep them in line with Fall/Spring rates; we are proposing clarifying language to maintain seniority rights for Summer/Winter faculty; we are proposing to codify in contract language CAPS’ compensation practices for both over enrolled and under enrolled courses; and we are proposing new language on fall/spring CAPS course assignments that is in line with the (new) Article 21.
3. Difference in Paid Leave (i.e. Sabbatical Gap)- We are proposing an additional form of sabbatical for tenure track faculty that would allow a teaching free semester every 3 years.
4. NTT Service and Scholarship- We are proposing full-time appointments for certain NTT (possibly Senior Lecturers and/or Senior Lecturer II’s) that would include a 3/3 teaching load plus 25% scholarship and/or service. And we are seeking to clarify the status of service for all other NTT faculty.
5. Research Intensive Semester- We are proposing one research intensive semester for pre-tenure track faculty (to be achieved via the granting of additional course releases).
6. Late Career Options- We have proposed late career possibilities for tenure track faculty including phased retirement options and partial retirement options.
7. Longevity Pay- We are proposing to increase the amount of the payment (a payment based on years of service given to unit members upon retirement)

We intend to negotiate over a number of other subjects including distance learning, clinical nursing non-tenure track faculty, librarians, as well as additional NTT issues (proposals on these subjects will be formulated in conjunction with the bargaining survey which we expect to send to members shortly).

The Administration has indicated to us that, due to the UMB budget crisis, they cannot consider proposals that will have a budgetary impact. We received and anticipate continuing push back to the bulk of our proposals. Once we get a clearer picture of exactly where Admin stands in this regard we will engage with members on how to proceed. We will be meeting with the Administration between now and the start of the Spring semester and we will continue to update members on the progress of negotiations.

Sincerely,
Marlene Kim
